

Preparation

Identify key results of your intervention

Gather change story and evidence supporting change pathways

If a case study or story of change isn't written: reconstruct the change pathways leading to result

If a case study or story of change is written: ensure project team is prepared to recount events

Identify defendant, prosecutor, and jury

Process

Defendant (programme team member) presents the change and contribution claims, supported by evidence

Prosecutor (MEL adviser) tests the claims for more or less contribution

Jury observe and pass judgement on degree of contribution

Further discussion if needed

Learning

Collectively agreed results are documented

Results shared with stakeholders

Any learning rolled into programming
